

The Warhol in Spain: Málaga, Madrid, and Santander with Bilbao with Patrick Moore, Director of The Andy Warhol Museum
 May 29–June 6, 2018

Optional Prelude to La Alhambra y El Generalife in Granada: May 28–29

Join Patrick Moore, director of The Andy Warhol Museum, on an exciting journey to exotic Spain for The Warhol’s private opening exhibition party at Museo Picasso in Málaga, one of the oldest cities in the world, located on the southern coast of the country. Be welcomed by museum leadership and spend the evening celebrating Andy Warhol’s work in the birthplace of Pablo Picasso.

Escape to Spain’s cultural, political, and economic capital, Madrid, via high-speed train while seeing the vast Spanish countryside. Visit the Museo Nacional del Prado, Madrid’s main museum of Spanish national art. Dine at the Casino de Madrid, and explore both the Museo Sorolla and the Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofia.

On this extraordinary trip, tour the historic city of Santander, as well as the Basque Country gem of Bilbao. Visit world-class museums, including the spectacular Guggenheim Museum Bilbao, designed by Frank Gehry, centuries-old fortresses, architectural masterpieces, and private collections. Experience the “real Spain” with special invitations to private residences and an evening with Patrick and his husband, Joaquin, at their home in the Santander countryside.

“ The choice of eateries and travel were just right, the accommodations splendid, and even the drivers entertaining. We’ve never travelled in such style. The gardens and homes were surprisingly interesting and beautiful, and meeting folks like Fred Krehbiel, the Guinnesses, Jim Reynolds, Lady Dunraven, and others—priceless. Doing this with the other travelers enhanced our knowledge and breadth of adventure. We are so lucky to be able to experience trips like this. ” - Jim and Elizabeth Fisher
